

The NFL Draft Takes Over Green Bay

Ella Vandenberg | Staff Writer

Photo by Sides Imagery from Pexels

After years of anticipation and preparation, the 2025 NFL Draft finally made its way to Green Bay. The draft is an annual event in which NFL teams select college football players to add to their rosters for the upcoming season, which takes place in a new city each year. 2025 marked the first time that the draft took place in Green Bay. With so much excitement surrounding the festivities, hundreds of thousands of individuals from all over the country flocked to the city.

The three-day-long event included countless activities to keep patrons entertained and engaged. The draft itself drew a very large crowd, with many avid football fans getting a feel for what this season's rosters will look like. However, the large audience that flooded Lambeau Field was provided with far more entertainment than simply listening to the picks. Lambeau Field and Titledown had countless vendors supplying uniquely Wisconsin food and drinks that spectators could enjoy.

One of the highlights of the weekend for many was the music. There were live music performances from various popular artists. The big event to close out the draft was a live performance from country singer Brad Paisley. The concert took place on Saturday after the final picks had been made, garnering a very large crowd of people, not yet ready to leave the festivities.

The draft proved to be a successful and beneficial event for the city of Green Bay. It was both engaging and generated a significant amount of revenue for the city. Countless individuals spent at least a portion of their time in Green Bay exploring the city and engaging with the community. The NFL Draft presented Green Bay with a great opportunity to show off all the city has to offer.