

Spring Break Athletics Recap

It was a busy spring break for many Green Knights, various SNC sports teams traveling around the country to compete in tournaments. Not only was the break busy, but it was also successful for many individuals and teams. Spring break is a great opportunity for teams to extend beyond their traditional rotation of competitors and engage with teams from around the country.

Florida was a popular destination for many teams including baseball, softball, men's and women's tennis. Not only did these teams get a welcome reprieve from the cool Wisconsin weather, they also got the chance to have some preliminary competition as they enter into their spring season. All teams performed well with many of the men's and women's tennis matches ending in a clean sweep.

Men's and women's hockey had a busy week as well, with both teams competing in the NCAA Division III Tournament. Women's Hockey made history by beating Gustavus Adolphus to secure their first NCAA tournament win. The men's team was also able to secure a win against their competitors, advancing themselves into the quarter-finals of the tournament.

It was also an eventful week for four members of the SNC track and field team as they traveled to Rochester, N.Y. to compete in the NCAA DIII Indoor Championship. Each athlete performed well, including senior Aiden Anderson who walked away with a national title in the men's pole vault. In addition to his title, he set a new school record.

While many were at home resting, dozens of SNC athletes were on the road, spread across the country competing in tournaments. Countless SNC athletes had record-breaking performances, bringing wins and titles back to campus with them. While the spring athletics season is only just beginning, spring break offers a strong indication of what's to come.
